MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Before the Court is the United States of America's Motion for Default Judgment. Doc. 10. For the reasons that follow, the Motion is GRANTED.

I.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff United States of America (the Government) originally filed this lawsuit against Defendant Shauntell Washington on March 24, 2017. Doc. 1, Compl. The Government alleges that Defendant received duplicative benefits from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Further, Defendant was not eligible and is, therefore, indebted to the United States for the principal and interest on that amount. See id. Defendant was served with the summons and complaint on May 19, 2017. Doc. 7, Affidavit of Service. Despite having been served, Defendant neither submitted an answer nor otherwise made an appearance in this case.

Accordingly, the Government requested an entry of default as to Defendant on June 16, 2017, which the Clerk of Court entered the same day. Doc. 8, Request for Clerk to Issue Entry of Default; 9, Entry of Default. That same day, the Government filed the present Motion for Default Judgment against Defendant to recover the amount due for the duplicative benefits, as well as pre- and post-judgment interest. To date, Defendant has not made an appearance in this case.

LEGAL STANDARD

Rule 55 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure authorizes the Court to enter a default judgment against a defendant who has failed to plead or otherwise defend upon motion of the plaintiff. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(a)–(b). That being said, “[d]efault judgments are a drastic remedy, not favored by the Federal Rules and resorted to by courts only in extreme situations.” Sun Bank of Ocala v. Pelican Homestead & Sav. Ass’n, 874 F.2d 274, 276 (5th Cir. 1989). A party is not entitled to a default judgment merely because the defendant is technically in default. Ganther v. Ingle, 75 F.3d 207, 212 (5th Cir. 1996). “Rather, a default judgment is generally committed to the discretion of the district court.” United States v. 1998 Freightliner Vin #: 1FU9CZ9B3WP886986, 548 F. Supp. 2d 381, 384 (W.D. Tex. 2008) (citing Mason v. Lister, 562 F.2d 343, 345 (5th Cir. 1977)).

In determining whether a default judgment should be entered against a defendant, courts have developed a three-part analysis.<sup>1</sup> See, e.g., 1998 Freightliner Vin #: 1FU9CZ9B3WP886986, 548 F. Supp. 2d at 384. First, courts consider whether the entry of default judgment is procedurally warranted. See Lindsey v. Prive Corp., 161 F.3d 886, 893 (5th Cir. 1998). The factors relevant to this inquiry include:

[1] whether material issues of fact exist; [2] whether there has been substantial prejudice; [3] whether the grounds for default are clearly established; [4] whether the default was caused by a good faith mistake or excusable neglect; [5] the harshness of a default judgment; and [6] whether the court would think itself obliged to set aside the default on the defendant's motion.

Second, courts assess the substantive merits of the plaintiff's claims and determine whether there is a sufficient basis in the pleadings for the judgment. See Nishimatsu Constr. Co., Ltd. v. Hous. Nat'l Bank, 515 F.2d 1200, 1206 (5th Cir. 1975) (noting that "default is not treated as an absolute confession by the defendant of his liability and of the plaintiff's right to recover."). In doing so, courts are to assume that due to its default, defendant admits all well-pleaded facts in the plaintiff's complaint. Id. However, "defendant is not held to admit facts that are not-well pleaded or to admit conclusions of law." Id.

Third, courts determine what form of relief, if any, the plaintiff should receive. See, e.g., 1998 Freightliner Vin #: 1FUYCZYB3WP886986, 548 F. Supp. 2d at 384. Normally, damages are not to be awarded without a hearing or a demonstration by detailed affidavits establishing the necessary facts. See United Artists Corp. v. Freeman, 605 F.2d 854, 857 (5th Cir. 1979). However, if the amount of damages can be determined with mathematical calculation by reference to the pleadings and supporting documents, a hearing is unnecessary. James v. Frame, 6 F.3d 307, 310 (5th Cir. 1993).

ANALYSIS

Applying the three-part analysis detailed above, the Court concludes that the Government is entitled to a default judgment on its claim to recover duplicative benefits against Defendant.

A. Default Judgment is Procedurally Warranted

After reviewing the Government's Motion in light of the six Lindsey factors, the Court determines that default judgment is procedurally warranted. First, Defendant has not filed any responsive pleadings. Consequently, there are no material facts in dispute. Lindsey, 161 F.3d at 893; Nishimatsu Constr., 515 F.2d at 1206 (noting that “[t]he defendant, by his default, admits the plaintiff’s well-pleaded allegations of fact.”). Second, Defendant’s “failure to respond threatens to bring the adversary process to a halt, effectively prejudicing Plaintiff’s interests.” Ins. Co. of the W. v. H & G Contractors, Inc., No. C-10-390, 2011 WL 4738197, at *3 (S.D. Tex, Oct. 5, 2011) (citing Lindsey, 161 F.3d at 893). Third, the grounds for default are “clearly established,” as Defendant has not responded to the summons and complaint, the entry of default, or the Motion over the past two months. Cf. Elite v. The KNR Grp., 216 F.3d 1080 (Table), 2000 WL 729378, at *1 (5th Cir. May 19, 2000) (per curiam) (holding default judgment to be inappropriate where defendant sent a letter to the court explaining his failure to appear was due to financial privation). Fourth, there is no evidence before the Court to indicate that Defendant’s silence is the result of a “good faith mistake or excusable neglect.” Lindsey, 161 F.3d at 893. Fifth, the Government only seeks the relief the law provides, mitigating the harshness of a default judgment against Defendant. Finally, the Court is not aware of any facts that would give rise to “good cause” to set aside the default if challenged by Defendant. See id. Therefore, the Court concludes that default judgment is procedurally warranted.

B. Default Judgment is Substantively Warranted

In light of the entry of default, Defendant is deemed to have admitted the allegations set forth in the Government’s Complaint. Nonetheless, the Court must review the pleadings to determine whether they provide a sufficient basis for the Government’s claim for relief. Nishimatsu Constr., 515 F.2d at 1206. In conducting this analysis, the Fifth Circuit has looked to the Rule 8 case law for guidance:

Rule 8(a) (2) requires a pleading to contain “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” The purpose of this requirement is “to ‘give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 (1957)). The factual allegations in the complaint need only “be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level, on the assumption that all the allegations in the complaint are true (even if doubtful in fact).” Id. (footnote and citations omitted). “[D]etailed factual allegations” are not required, but the pleading must present “more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009).

Wooten v. McDonald Transit Assocs., Inc., 788 F.3d 490, 498 (5th Cir. 2015).

The Government seeks to recover duplicative benefits under 42 U.S.C. § 5155(c), which reads:

A person receiving Federal assistance for a major disaster or emergency shall be liable to the United States to the extent that such assistance duplicates benefits available to the person for the same purpose from another source. The agency which provided the duplicative assistance shall collect such duplicative assistance from the recipient in accordance with chapter 37 of Title 31, relating to debt collection, when the head of such agency considers it to be in the best interest of the Federal Government.

42 U.S.C. § 5155(c). Additionally, 44 C.F.R. § 206.116(b) provides:

An applicant must return funds to FEMA . . . when FEMA . . . determines that the assistance was provided erroneously, that the applicant spent the fund inappropriately, or that the applicant obtained assistance through fraudulent means.

44 C.F.R. § 206.116(b).

Here, the Government’s filings establish that default judgment against Defendant is substantively warranted. The Complaint and exhibits indicate that on or about July 27, 2011, the Government notified Defendant that it had: (1) distributed funds to her; (2) the funds were duplicative; and (3) the funds were dispersed erroneously. Doc. 1, Compl. ¶ 3; Doc. 1, Compl., Ex. A, FEMA Letter. The original amount of duplicative benefits that Defendant was obligated to return was $7,149.00. Id. Ex. A, FEMA Letter. Furthermore, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, FEMA (the “Department”) is the owner and holder of the debt. Doc. 1, Compl. ¶ 6; Doc. 1, Compl., Ex. B, Certificate of Indebtedness.

As of February 28, 2017, Defendant is indebted to the United States in the amount of $12,640.63 (principal, interest, and administrative costs) plus the per diem interest and penalty. Id. ¶ 7. The Government may recover administrative costs as provided by 31 U.S.C. §§ 3711(g)(6)–(7); 3717(e). And the Government may recover interest and a penalty on the amount due as provided by 31 U.S.C. § 3717(a)–(d). Interest accrued at a rate of $.20 per date, and penalties accrued at a rate of $1.18 per day. Doc. 1, Compl. Ex. B, Certificate of Indebtedness.

After review, the Court concludes that these allegations are sufficient to provide Defendant with “fair notice” of the Government’s claims. The Court further determines that Defendant is not an infant, incompetent, or entitled to relief under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, 50 App. U.S.C. § 501 et seq. Doc. 10-1, Decl. in Supp. of Default J. at 2. Accordingly, the Government is entitled to recover for any unpaid principal and interest on Defendant’s obligation.

C. The Government’s Claim is for a Sum Certain

Finally, the Government’s claim is for a sum certain. The Government’s records show that as of February 28, 2017, Defendant was indebted to the Government for $12,640.63, with interest and penalties accruing at $1.38 per day thereafter. Doc. 1, Compl. ¶ 7; Doc. 1, Compl., Ex. B, Certificate of Indebtedness.
